Announcing: An Award for Exemplary Student Writing in the Disciplines

The Writing Lab at Bristol Community College is pleased to sponsor an annual honor: Exemplary Student Writing in the Disciplines.

Each of the college's academic divisions will be invited to name a single piece of exemplary writing in its area. All winners will be recognized at Honor's night and will receive a certificate of recognition from President Sbrega. All winning work, together with remarks from nominating faculty, will be displayed on the Writing Lab web page.

Format:

No single format will be required. Each division will decide upon the form of writing that it wishes to recognize and promote for the college-wide honor

Process:

- A faculty or staff member will nominate in writing a particular student's work and will bring the written nomination to the division dean. Each nomination will offer the faculty member's rationale for selecting a particular work for recognition.
- The division dean will designate a subcommittee from the division to select a single divisional winner.
- The divisional dean will forward the winning paper and contact information, as well as the contact information of remaining participants, to the director of the Writing Lab.
- The Lab director notifies the winners and remaining participants.
- Winners are recognized at Honor's Night in the spring.
- Faculty nominating remarks and winning papers are published on the Lab web site.
- Deadline for nominations: April 10, 2009
